

Statement of Purpose for Law Internship Sample

The world in which we live is becoming more complex day by day. New innovations and technologies necessitate new laws for countries, communities and individuals to live a peaceful and uninterrupted life. The demand for law firms and experts in various types of laws will keep increasing in the future. I got attracted to the field of law during my school days as a result of my encounter with a lawyer who had come to meet my father regarding a property dispute. It was then that I realized the importance of law and order in society and how a legal system keeps our societies coexisting peacefully.

My graduation in law coupled with various self-research, extensive readings, and seminars that I have attended in the field of law have added to my knowledge of the law and helped me thrive in this field. I am hopeful that this law internship that I am taking up with Brands Associates will give me the much-needed foundation in my journey to becoming a successful law professional.

I have been an avid learner throughout my academic formation periods. After completing my graduation in Political Science, I joined Government Law College, Mumbai, for my professional qualification in the discipline. The initial year was tough for me because the curriculum and the mode of training in the law program were quite different from my previous academic formations. Even though some of my colleagues gave up after the first semester, I was quite convinced about what I wanted in my professional life and worked hard. I never failed in any subjects throughout the program.

During my law training, I used to have extensive discussions with my friends about major business disputes in the country. We would debate from both sides of the argument. These discussions have helped me a lot in developing a strong identification with the sides of the claimant as well as the plaintiff in the litigation. My final year law thesis was on the famous case of Cyrus Investments Pvt. Ltd. & Anr. v. Tata Sons Ltd. & Ors. I received the highest grade for the thesis in my batch. Besides helping me with getting familiar with the nuances of financial litigation, this project helped me have more confidence in myself. Before this project, I used to wonder if I could ever dissect a complex legal dispute, see through both sides of the argument and arrive at a conclusion that would be acceptable for both parties.

Besides my academic interests, I used to be an active public speaker during my college years. Whenever we had any public function in the college, everyone would recommend my name for presiding it over. This public exposure has helped me a lot in developing my leadership qualities and communication skills. I understand that the ability to interact with people is the most essential quality for a law professional. Although I was not very much inclined to sports, I enjoyed watching, supporting teams and being behind the scenes. By being the person behind the scene, I could help my team win the games. My active participation in extracurricular activities helped me grow as a team player, and have consideration for others rather than being self-centred. I believe these qualities will help me immensely when I start my active career as a law advisor.
